Findings

- First paragraphs are important
- Managers might not read books, but rather audio channels (but maybe good for look-up)
- Should not exceed 25 minutes
- There is a pitch at Volvo that is 3 min
- Emily might add the question of good communication channel in their interviews
- „Book“ rather as framework
- „Project“ vs. „Product“ => need to be addressed as „Project“ and Open Source do not align => tactics for alignment need to be covered in the community

Community edition

- Rather „fluid“
- Collection of material
- Collection of „pitches“

Enterprise edition

- Different language than for the community ...
- „Open Innovation“ => Open Source as just another „flavour“ (when it comes to Software)
 - Idea: If „Open Innovation“ is already understood, the „mental model“ could be reused
- „Cost sharing“ => Open Source as just another „flavour“ ...
- Maybe further patterns ...

Latest learning

- Current business is typically focussed on „feature, feature, feature“ and non-functional requirements might be neglected budget-wise
- Idea: promote „compliance as a feature“
 - Especially with European CRA, AI Act etc. this is relevant for take part in the european market
- Potential chapter in the guide – especially for target group „Marketing Europe“
 - Might raise awareness on business side and free up the necessary resources to work on necessary process improvements (=> see OpenChain and SBOM topics)
